

1st Announcement of the World Congress of the International Society for Biophysics and the Skin (ISBS) June 10th – 12th, 2026 in Lyon, France

Founded in 1857, the École Centrale de Lyon (Centrale Lyon) is one of France's top 10 engineering schools. Its mission is to instill engineers with a solid scientific and technical background, along with a broad world view and the ability to adapt to changing and multicultural environments. Their students excel in the sciences, benefitting from applied training and a skills-based approach, including directed study in labs, practical work, experimental projects, and internships. Human and social sciences make up an essential component of the degree programs, helping students develop personally and professionally in addition to their practical instruction.
